Dear Coach:

It takes a lot to get to Columbus and the state final four. And, in between, time is tight. With practice, games, snow days and the holidays, improving your teams' skills becomes a constant battle of getting the most out of your limited days.

“This summer a dozen of our players participated in the Cleveland Basketball Schools program. Simply put, it made a huge difference in their ball-handling skills, passing, shooting and confidence. Coach Haught and his staff do an excellent job in detailed instruction and use a number of innovative drills to build skills. I was also impressed with the positive way instruction is provided. Our players loved it and every one of them improved. After seeing one session at CBS I recommended it to every player in our program. We could not have asked for better results.” – Gary Tipton, Nordonia High School, girl's varsity head coach.

This is where the Cleveland Basketball School comes in. Act now to take advantage of the experience and natural enthusiasm of Paul Haught, owner/operator of CBS.

Creative methods are used in individual as well as team lessons. Skills are taught with emphasis on shooting, passing, dribbling, offense and defense at three different locations in the Brecksville, Medina and Twinsburg areas.

Sessions are available 12 months per year whether they take place at one of our convenient locations or at your school as a supplement to your practice.

“I had Paul and the Cleveland Basketball School come down for one of our ten coaching days this summer. I thought this day was the most beneficial day we spent with our team this summer. Our staff is always looking for ways to motivate our players and what it takes to improve on their own in the off-season. Paul's drills and the message he gave to our players that day was outstanding.” – Larry Kakura, Alliance High School, boys varsity head coach.

Skills are improved with the use of jumping rope, ladder drills and agility work with a focus on improving both speed and quickness.

Hard work, character and respect are taught along with the John Wooden philosophy of repetition.

Teams and individual players have benefited from Haught's hand-on, nurturing approach to teaching. With over 30 years in education and coaching Coach Haught knows how to connect – to get the most out of each and every player he tutors.

Classes are filling up, but there is still time to get your team or select players involved in extra training before the games really count.
